

Supplementary Material - Global convergence of incomes in a climate-constrained world

Yannick Oswald^{*1}

¹Institute of Sustainability and Geography, University of Lausanne

July, 2024

1 Supplementary Figure 1

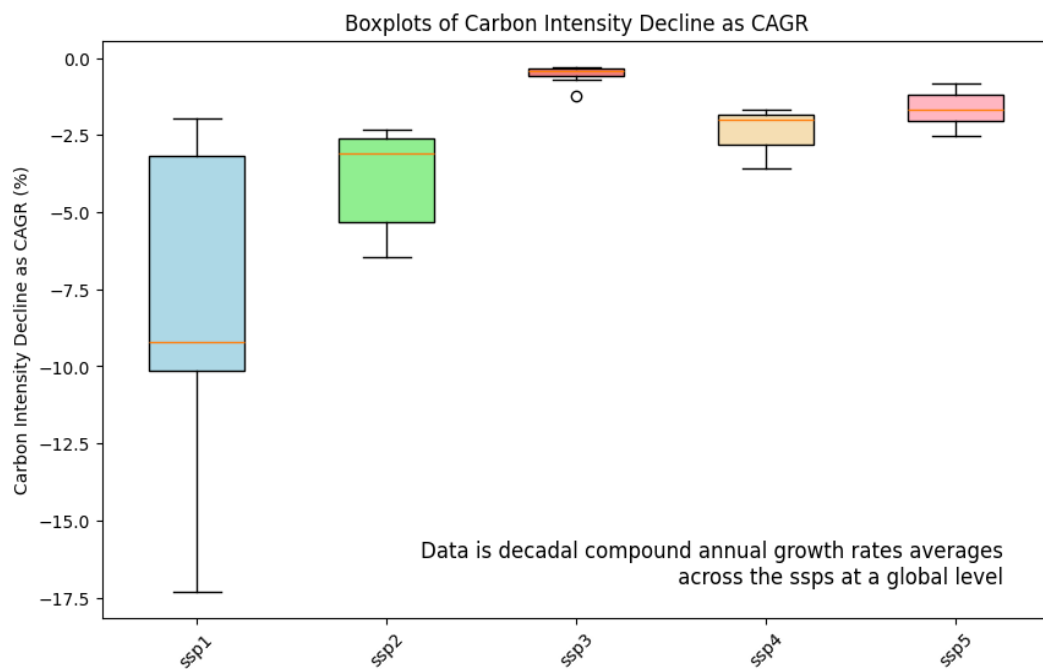

Figure 1: Shared Socio-economic Pathways global carbon intensity decline rates

*corresponding author: y-oswald@web.de

2 Supplementary Figure 2

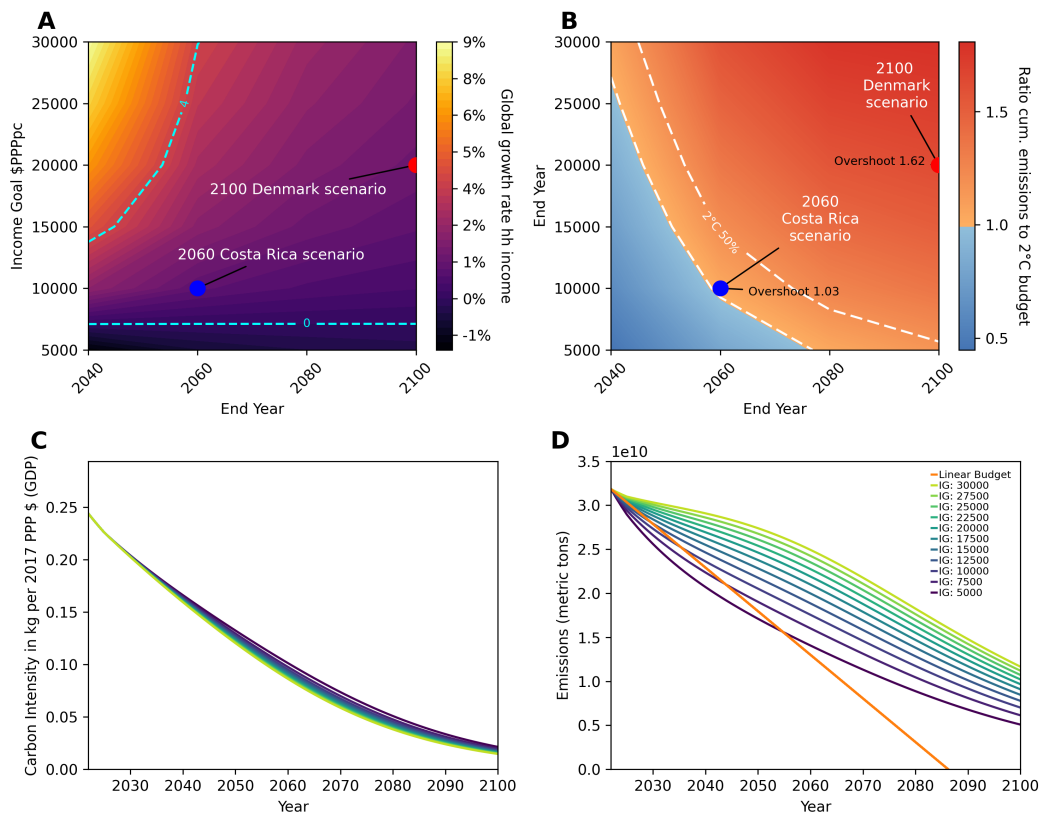

Figure 2: Convergence trajectories with time and income trade-offs but without path-dependency in technology and population growth.

3 Supplementary Figure 3

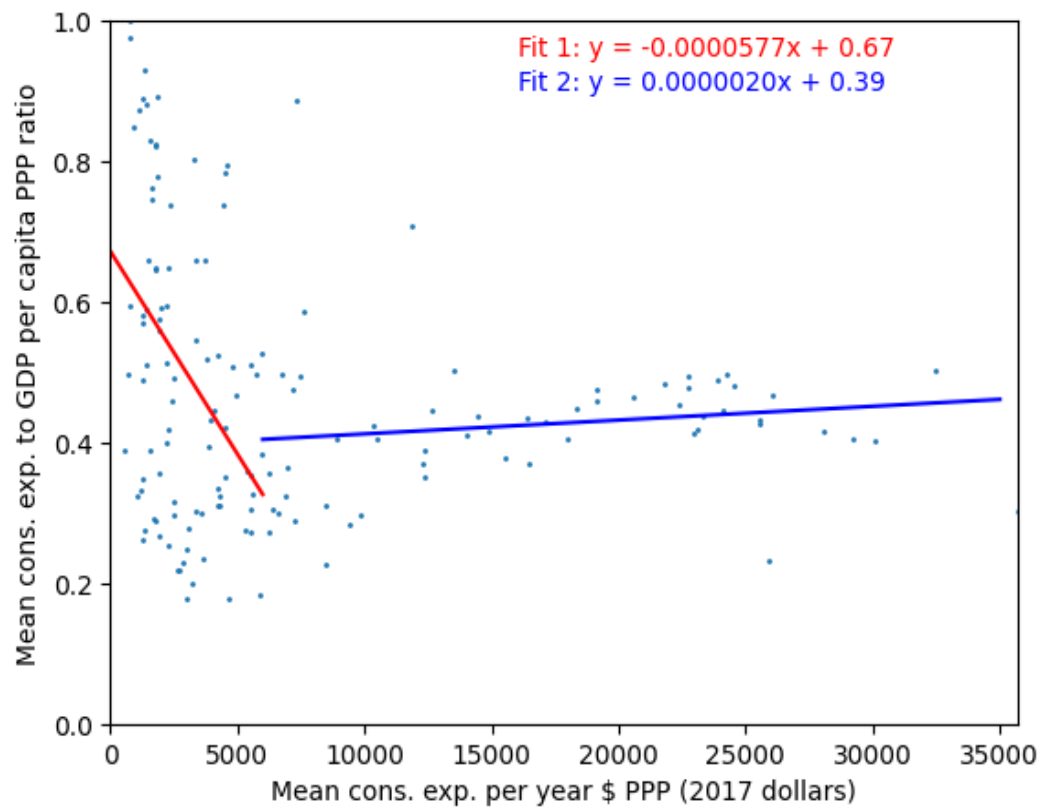

Figure 3: Relationship between household consumption expenditure per capita and the ratio of household consumption expenditure per capita to GDP per capita